Rock River Community Clinic Completes $2 Million Capital Campaign

Johnson Creek, WI – June 23, 2026– Rock River Community Clinic (RRCC) recently completed their $2 million capital campaign after just over a year of fundraising efforts.

The Wisconsin State Building Commission recently awarded RRCC $330,000 through the Non-State Grant Program, helping reach the finish line.

The 2025-2026 “Moving Upstream” Campaign consisted of:

- Opening a new integrated medical, dental & behavioral client site in the first floor of the Fort HealthCare Johnson Creek clinic to expand and integrate patient care services
- Renovating the existing medical clinic in Whitewater to expand into the empty lower suite for administrative and business offices, creating additional space to support the continued growth of medical services.
- Relocating and renovating the Watertown medical clinic to the empty Medical Clinic building on the Watertown Regional Medical Center campus

“Because of this incredible support, we’ll be able to serve more patients while reducing barriers to accessing care,” said Dr. Olivia Nichols, CEO/Executive Director of Rock River Community Clinic. “Medical, dental, and behavioral health services will operate together in our new Johnson Creek clinic, a milestone made possible by this campaign and the generosity of our community.”

By integrating patient services, RRCC will minimize overhead costs and maximize patient access to affordable services. By late summer, RRCC plans to transform the Watertown clinic into an outpatient behavioral health center. With these expansions, RRCC projects to serve 6,800 patients annually by 2028, totaling an estimated 23,000 visits.

RRCC will host a public open house of the Johnson Creek clinic later this summer, offering community members an opportunity to tour the clinic and learn more about RRCC’s mission to provide quality, comprehensive health care for all.
